FIVE HURT IN TWO CRASHES

CLEVE CORNETT, PAINTER, MOST SERIOUSLY INJURED.

HITS A PARKED SEDAN

Accident Follows a Collision Between Car of Walter C. Brown and One From Kansas City.

Attendants at the St. Francis Hospital reported at 3:45 o'clock this afternoon that Cleve Cornett, injured in an automobile accident, was "doing pretty well."

Five persons were injured, two seriously, and five automobiles were damaged, two nearly wrecked, in two automobile accidents occurring two and a half miles south of Maryville on the paving about 9:45 o'clock last night.

Cleve Cornett, Maryville, a painter, was in the St. Francis Hospital today in a critical condition, suffering from deep gashes from broken glass. He was expected to recover, however, his physician stated this morning.

The others injured were:

Walter C. Brown, 603 South Main street.

Mrs. Brown.

Alice Mary Brown.

Mrs. L. O. Vincent, Kansas City.

The automobiles damaged belonged to Cornett, Brown, Harvey L. Haines, L. O. Vincent and Mrs. W. L. Gray. The Brown car suffered damages to the front end and Cornett's was nearly a total loss. The damages to the other cars were less extensive.

Two Crashes at Same Place.

The accidents occurred within a few minutes of each other, the first being probably the cause of the second. Mr. and Mrs. Brown, with their two sons, Harold, age 9, and Junior, age 10, and their 2-year-old daughter, Alice Mary, were returning to Maryville, after visiting relatives south of the city.

As they approached the D. O. Belt farm, Mr. Brown said, he saw two cars coming from the north, the one behind rapidly gaining on the first. Mr. Brown said that as he was about to pass the first car, the second swung out to pass the first and collided with the Brown car, a Ford touring.

The man driving the other car gave his name as L. O. Vincent, an employe of the Standard Oil Company, returning to Kansas City from a vacation in Canada. He was driving a single seated sport model and carried considerable luggage.

Mrs. Brown was thrown under the dash board by the impact. She received two gashes on her right arm, a deep cut from her nose to her left eye, and both legs were injured. Mr. Brown suffered bruises, especially to his right leg. Their daughter, Mary Alice, suffered a gash on the head.

Mrs. Vincent suffered a scalp wound, eye witnesses said today.

The lights on the Brown machine were dim, being of the old magneto type, but they were operating normally, Mr. Brown said. He declares only the fact that he was driving slowly prevented a more serious crash.

Cornett Driving Fast.

Automobiles began stopping at the side of the road, to lend assistance to the victims of the wreck. Among these was the new Lincoln sedan of Mr. Haines.

As Will Toel, another of the passing drivers, was starting to take the Browns to Maryville for medical aid, eye witnesses said, the Cornett car came over the top of the hill at terrific speed and crashed into the Haines machine, smashing the two spare disc wheels and gasoline tank of the sedan. Miss Pauline Mahr was with Mr. Haines and she was thrown against the top of the car.

The force of the collision shoved the Lincoln into the car of Mrs. W. L. Gray, occupied by Mrs. Gray and her daughter, Shirley. In some manner, Cornett was thrown to the ground and the right wheel ran over one of his shoulders. Percy Jensen, another spectator, who has known Cornett for years, rushed to his aid, but did not recognize him at first, due to the severe gashes on his face.

Cornett was rendered unconscious and he remained in a semi-conscious condition until this morning. His physician said Cornett was cut badly on his hands, face and arms, and suffered a deep gash over his right eye. No internal injuries had been found this morning, but he was having hemorrhages at the nose this morning.

The physician would not state whether Cornett had been drinking, and the COUNTY COURT AGAIN ASKS BANKS FOR PROPOSALS.

INSISTS UPON BONDS

Bids Submitted Previously This Summer Rejected For Lack Of Sureties.

Bids for county depositories again were advertised today, to be opened by the county court at noon August 1.

Fred Wright, county clerk, in advertising for bids, said that "bids on funds or parts of funds to be divided into ten parts will be opened at noon August 1. The successful bidders will be required to give surety bonds at their own expense, to the satisfaction of the county court.

Bids were submitted once before this summer by the three Maryville banks and the Bank of Arkoe bid only for two parts, it was not considered. The Maryville bids were not accompanied by surety bonds, and the court insisted surety bonds be given by the successful bidders.

The banks have announced that the interest rate paid to the county must be lowered if it is necessary to pay the cost of surety bonds.

Mary Vore Suffers Arm Injury When Father's Car Goes Into Ditch and Turns Over.

Mary Vore, 9 years old, daughter of Leonard Vore, near Hopkins, was severely injured in an automobile accident Saturday afternoon when the car in which she and her father were riding went into a ditch and turned over. The cause of the accident is not known. Mr. Vore was driving the machine.

The child was rushed to a St. Joseph hospital for treatment. The muscle on the back of her right arm above the elbow was cut completely across, exposing all of the blood vessels. The largest artery was not cut.

The child is doing nicely today, it was reported, and the arm is not likely to be crippled from the accident, it was announced.

Mr. Vore received only a few bruises. The accident occurred about 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon.

BUILDING HERE IS BRISK NOW

SEVERAL HOMES OF HIGH TYPE UNDER CONSTRUCTION.

NEW WAREHOUSE, ALSO

Cold Storage Structure Is Being Erected; W. A. Rickenbrode Uses Brick Veneer and Stucco.

While there is no abnormal boom, summer building operations in Maryville are progressing briskly, according to local lumber dealers.

Practically all of the building in the residence section is by persons who intend to make their homes in the new houses, and they are of a higher type than the average.

In the business district, the remodeling of the building formerly occupied by the Eversole store is rapidly nearing completion. A new front has been constructed, and work now is under way on the inside. The building will probably be ready for occupancy in August.

Work has been started on another business building, the cold storage warehouse of the Missouri Shipping Association. The building will be 50 feet by 75 feet and will be built of cement blocks. It is located southwest of the Wabash passenger depot. The association built a similar building at Albany last year.

Residences Under Construction.

W. A. Rickenbrode is building an attractive home on West Third street, just east of his present dwelling. The lower half is of brick veneer and the upper half is of stucco. English style architecture is being used. The house is 35 feet 4 inches by 36 feet 4 inches. There are five rooms and bath upstairs and four rooms and a breakfast room downstairs, with ample closets on both floors. There is a large colonial fire-place on each floor. There is a large sun-room down stairs and on the southeast corner of the upstairs is located an especially nice sleeping porch. The rooms are large and the living-room and sun-parlor can be thrown into one room by opening the accordian doors which separate the two.

A particularly attractive feature is the entrance. The architect has worked out an effect whereby a small opening is entered before one steps into the hall. The house is strictly modern throughout and is equipped with the latest improvements in plumbing and wiring fixtures.

Charles Wiles has a neat one-story brick cottage under construction on South Buchanan Street. It is 28 feet by 44 feet. There are six rooms in the house, two bedrooms, a den, living room, dining room, kitchen, besides a breakfast room and bath. There is a full basement under the house. It is strictly modern throughout and has ample closet room. The floors are all of oak. The breakfast room has a clever entrance. It is set off the kitchen with an arched opening. Another interesting feature about the house is the fire-place. It has a brick mantle with an arched opening, and a small arched niche at the top built in for the clock. There is a large porch on the southeast corner of the house, set off with a brick rail which adds materially to its appearance. There is also a garage to match the house.

A Frame Bungalow.

Linwood Singleton is completing work on an attractive frame bungalow on South Mulberry street. It is 28 feet by 44 feet, and has a full basement under the house. There are special built-in features in the kitchen and oak floors throughout. The plastering in the kitchen and bathroom is marked off in tile effect. The walls are painted and decorated and the wood work is stained in light oak. The bungalow is strictly modern and is about ready for occupancy.

Math Grady has started a one-story bungalow, 26 feet and 36 feet, on South Buchanan Street. A house has recently been moved from the location where Mr. Grady is building, and the drain tiles of the old foundation remained. Mr. Grady put in some new tile and now prides himself on having a very effective drain. There is a bricked coal bin in the basement and a fruit and cyclone cellar just off the basement on the east. The house will have for its cover, wire netting interwoven with asbestos paper and plastered over with cement. It will be modern throughout and will contain five rooms and a bath. There will be a new garage on the lot to match the house.

Carl Yates, who recently moved here from Burlington Junction, has plans laid for a five room bungalow to be erected on East 6th Street. It will be modern in every respect, and work will be commenced next week on its construction.

The residence of Joe Wells, located on South Main, is rapidly nearing completion. It is a five-story frame bungalow and will be modern in the latest sense of the word.

FORD ACT BY HIS OWN WILL

NEW VERSION GIVEN OF APOLOGY TO JEWS.

"ESSENTIAL" HE SAYS

Manufacturer Points Out He Employs Thousands of Race.—Sapiro Comes to Settle Suit.

New York, July 11.—Henry Ford acted entirely of his own free will in his recent statement of apology and retraction for attacks on Jews published in his Dearborn Independent and set about correcting the situation as soon as he learned the attacks were being made, Joseph Calla, special agent of the Department of Justice, said in a statement today.

Calla told a new version of the story of how Ford came to make his remarkable statement. He quoted Ford as having said to him in conversation, when the matter was first brought to his attention, that he was for the Jews; that he had thousands of them in his employ; and that he would employ thousands more.

"The Jew is essential not only to America but to the world in general," Calla quoted Ford as saying.

Detroit, July 11.—Aaron Sapiro was expected to come to Detroit today to settle his $1,000,000 libel suit against Henry Ford.

Sapiro possibly will ask for payment of the expenses he incurred in prosecuting the suit after the Dearborn Independent, Ford's magazine, charged him with exploiting the farmers of the country.

Ford has apologized for the attacks and William Henry Gallagher, Sapiro's attorney, has indicated the suit will be withdrawn if terms can be made with Ford.

DEATH DELAYS ARMS PARLEY

RUPTURE IN TRI-NAVAL MEET TEMPORARILY AVERTED.

NO ARMAMENT RACE

Secretary Chamberlin Deplores Thought United States And British Should Compete.

London, July 11.—"It is unthinkable that Great Britain should enter in to competition with the United States in a new race for armaments, Sir Austen Chamberlain, secretary of foreign affairs, said in the House of Commons today.

The statement was made while Chamberlain was answering a series of questions touching on diplomacy, put him by a heckler.

Geneva, July 11.—Danger of an immediate rupture of the tri-partite naval conference has been temporarily averted.

The plenary session, scheduled for today, at which the delegates of the United States, Great Britain and Japan were to state their views in the spotlight of publicity, was postponed.

W. E. Bridgeman, first lord of the British admirality, requested the postponement last night and received consent of heads of the other delegations.

In an official announcement of the changed plan there was no hint of an imminent collapse of the conference. It was said by Second Minister Wilson that the meeting would not be held today, "in deference to the death of Kevin O'Higgins, vice-president of the Irish Free State, who was assassinated yesterday."

CLEMENCEAU'S CONDITION IS VERY SERIOUS

Relatives Summoned to Bedside of the "Tiger" of France—Unable to Ward Off Effect of Cold.

Paris, July 11.—Georges Clemenceau, most famous man of France, today was surrounded by relatives summoned to his bedside by doctors who manifested concern at their patient's condition.

Failing visibly the "Tiger" has been unable to throw off the effect of a cold and his 86 years of strenuous life have made inroads on his once rugged constitution.

It was understood that his physicians after an examination of the patient this afternoon informed the family he might recover but that relatives should remain with him in case a crisis developed. A crisis might come at any time, it was thought.

So serious was Clemenceau's condition last night that friends and relatives came to his apartment in the Rue Franklin.

It was reported that a few days ago the "Tiger" turned to his cook and said:

"My father died when he was 86; I do not think that I will live to be much older."

COURT RULES ZONING VALID

RIGHT OF CITIES TO PLAN GROWTH IS UPHELD.

NO CIGARETTE VOTE

An Appeal to People on Kansas City Tax Is Denied—St. Louis Telephone Rates Stand.

Jefferson City, July 11.—The State Supreme Court en banc today upheld the constitutionality of the new St. Louis zoning ordinance, opening the way for all Missouri cities with population of 15,000 or more to enact similar regulations.

All features of the St. Louis' law were held to be constitutional by a vote of 5 to 2. Judge Ragland wrote the decision, which said the law was a proper exercise of the police power of the city.

The dissenting opinion, written by Judge W. W. Graves, was concurred in by Judge D. E. Blair.

The recent legislature amended the enabling act to extend its provisions to cities under 15,000.

Jefferson City, July 11.—The Kansas City cigarette tax ordinance, which imposes a 20 per cent tax on the retail price of cigarettes cannot be referred to a vote of the people, the state supreme court ruled today.

In an opinion written by Judge J. T. White, the court held the ordinance was an emergency ordinance and therefore not referrable. The question of constitutionality was not raised in the suit.

The court also dismissed the appeal of the city of St. Louis in the Southwestern Bell Telephone Company rate case because the city failed to comply with the court's ruling that a full statement of the case be filed.

Increased rates for business telephones were granted the company by the Public Service Commission in 1925 for a test period of thirteen months.

AIR MAIL FOR WORLD SEEN BY HARRY F. NEW

Plans for International Service to Be Formulated at Postal Union Conference.

Washington, July 11.—Plans for an international air mail service will be formulated at the international postal union conference at the Hague, September 1, Postmaster-General Harry F. New, announced today.

Irvin W. Glover, second assistant Postmaster-General and Eugene R. White, superintendent of foreign mail, will represent the United States at the conference.

Postal officials from twenty-five nations will attend the conference and representatives of airplane companies everywhere have been asked to advise delegates on international air mail plans.

New predicted that temporary agreements for international air mail service would be reached at this conclave and remain in effect until the union meets in London in 1929.

New saw eventually a globe encircled mail service.

DRY OUTLOOK "FAVORABLE"

PROHIBITION ADMINISTRATORS REPORT TO CHIEF LOWMAN.

NEW ORDERS ISSUED

Plans For Prohibition Enforcement Drafted At Conference Of Federal Dry Officers Today.

Washington, July 11.—Prohibition administrators today reported to Seymour Lowman, acting assistant Secretary of the Treasury that enforcement conditions throughout the country are generally satisfactory.

After the morning conference of National field chiefs, Lowman and Dr. J. M. Doran, prohibition commissioner, said each administrator had reported, and that except for a few spots the prohibition outlook is "right."

Fall Work is Planned.

Washington, July 11.—Plans for prohibition enforcement work during the fall and winter months were to be drafted at a conference of federal dry administrators meeting at the Treasury today.

Administrators representing every state, Hawaii and Alaska attended the meeting to receive their new working orders from Seymour Lowman, former lieutenant governor of New York, who will succeed General L. C. Andrews as Assistant Secretary of the Treasury on August 1.

Lowman is unofficially the "dry czar" of the United States although Andrews still holds his Treasury post three weeks longer. The prohibition destinies of America will hereafter be directed by the New Yorker.

The first business of the conference, after welcoming addresses, was to present each field officer with a "Prohibition Manual". This book written by Major Herbert H. White, assistant prohibition commissioner, tells just how the law should be enforced and in what manner.

Lessons for Agents.

Lessons in how to make conspiracy cases, how to make arrests, the proper conduct for dry agents, how to prosecute cases of law violators, how to detect their agents, the use of fire arms and in fact every phase of work connected with prohibition enforcement is covered in the manuel.

The next order of business was a "pep" session to work up enthusiasm among the administrators. Good spirits and good morale are essential to success in dry enforcement work, Andrews believes.

The rally, however, appeared to be staged to assure support for Lowman from the men who were all appointed by Andrews to their present posts. Andrews built up the prohibition machine over a two year period and he does not desire it to crumble shortly after he leaves office.

Several to Resign.

Nevertheless several administrators indicated they intended to resign from the service within a short time. They stated they had taken administratorships because of their friendship with Andrews and now that he is retiring they would leave also.

Lowman will have several vacancies to fill but he will be guided in this matter and other policy matters by Dr. J. M. Doran, prohibition commissioner. The principal posts to be vacated are chief of Foreign control held by Harry J. Anslinger and Federal wine control supervisor held by H. Keith Weeks.

The administrator conference will continue the entire week, with the war maneuvers being maped out the latter part of the season. Lowman will obtain ideas and suggestions from the men and combine the ideas into a campaign against illicit liquor interests.

Lowman does not intend to make his reign as dry generalissimo spectacular. His program will be enforced on a sound business basis without a glare of publicity or cheers. He plans to enforce the law strictly to the letter and at the same time make enforcement as inoffensive as possible and in this manner win public support for the dry law.

Weather

Generally fair today and Tuesday, with some cloudiness, not much change in temperature.

THE ONLY DAILY PAPER IN NODAWAY COUNTY

TODAY'S CRUSADERS

A decade ago the American public was accustomed to seeing marching young people. They were young men going to war, to kill and be killed.

The other day, in Cleveland, citizens saw 10,000 young marchers. These were boys and girls, young men and women, representing the Christian Endeavor societies of the whole country. There was nothing sad about this parade. In gay costumes, with waving banners and balloons, these young people marched and sang as they marched.

During the days of their convention they attended meetings and listened to addresses calling them to serve God and country, and to serve their country by promoting peace, but intelligent participation in government, by obedience to law, by interest in facing and solving national problems.

The elders who deplore the ways of our modern youth have few grounds for their fears. Youth is always eager, idealistic, easily inspired, tireless in energy and in willingness to follow able leadership. Those elders who supply such leadership wisely will always find plenty of followers. When the youngsters go wrong it is because the example and leadership around them have been so bad.

Children's Lives Spared.

Mr. and Mrs. Vincent drove on from the scene of the accidents. Mr. Brown claims that Vincent was in the wrong and said as yet he had made no settlement with the Kansas Citian who gave his address as the Murray Hotel. His license number was 281-115.

Mr. Haines this morning said, "I have something to be thankful for, as my car probably saved the lives of a number of children."

A score or more of onlookers were gathered on the pavement when the Cornett car came hurtling down the pavement, and if it had not been for the larger machine, undoubtedly would have crashed into another containing several small children or would have swerved into the crowd, Mr. Haines thought.

The Cornett car is almost a complete wreck. The radiator is driven back to the cowling and the engine is under the floor boards. The driving gear is bent in a U-shape and the steering wheel is completely broken off. The windshield is entirely smashed and the left front tire is blown out. The top of the car is twisted out of shape and doors of the car will not shut, as the body of the car is far out of line. The headlights of the car are bent back at right angles to their former position.

The meetings were conducted by Evangelist H. C. Hankins and party and were under the auspices of the M. E. Church with other churches of the community co-operating. Evangelist Hankins left this afternoon to visit his mother, who is in a hospital at Oskaloosa, Ia. He will open a meeting at Fairplay, Mo., on July 24.

Christianity Not on Intellectual Basis

Appeal Is Universal and Fundamental, Says Rev. Dewar, Declaring Christ All-Sufficient.

"Whenever men attempt to place christianity upon a purely intellectual basis they face problems that the mind cannot solve and they are forced to turn away from them hopelessly and in despair," the Rev. W. N. Dewar told Presbyterians yesterday.

"The fact is that if christianity were a religion of the intellect it would not be universal and all sufficient to meet the highest and most important needs of mankind, which are not intellectual, but spiritual.

"It is this universal appeal to that which is fundamental and common to the whole life of man and humanity that has given christianity such a wonderful hold upon almost all of the nations of the earth.

"Christianity is life at its best, and its concern is with the best in life," the minister said. "It must of necessity therefore be ideal in its appeal to men if it is going to accomplish its work of maikng men, in view of the possibilities of the divine manhood, perfect as the Father in Heaven.

"Life as it was He found to be sinful, sordid and mean—fallen through ignorance and self-will far below that glory and perfection of which it was possible. The task of Jesus was the greatest of all that of adjusting in a true relationship man to man and man to his God. The accomplishment of this work in all the world would mean the solution of all the great problems which we claim to need a practical solution and not an ideal one.

"Some turn to science in the hope of finding the solution to the perplexities of life and they find science barren of comfort and hope. Science has its sphere of action, but it is distinct from religion. They can develop together without interfering with each other."

Speaking of sociology the minister declared, "Sociology as a science has a great work to do in making right the social life and relationships of mankind, but it is a failing work if it leaves Christ out of account. The sociologist has but the framework. Christ hath the words of the life eternal.

"Not to science, nor to poetry or art or music, not to sociology nor politics nor systems of government shall we go for an interpretation of the meaning of life. For hope, for peace, O Lord, to whom shall we go but unto Thee? Thou hast the words of eternal life and we believe and know that thou art the Holy One of God."

Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Montgomery and Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Montgomery motored to Camden Point yesterday to spend the day with John A. Montgomery, brother of J. F. Montgomery, and family.

Mrs. Porter Conder of Bedford, Ia., spent the week end in Maryville with her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Conder.

"Trees and Folks Are Alike," Musgrave

"Some Are Straight, Tall, and Clean, Others Crooked and Deceptive," Pastor Explains.

"'The groves were God's first Temples'," quoted the Rev. R. E. Musgrave yesterday in his sermon on "Trees and Folks."

"Trees afford peace, quietude and inspiration. The oak lives to be 1,000 years old. 'Three centuries he grows and three he stays, supreme in state; and in three more decays.'

"The elm under which Washington took over the command of the American army in 1775 still stands. In California in 1900 for scientific purposes a great redwood tree was felled, and an almost unbelievable truth was discovered when it was learned that this tree had its beginning 271 years before the birth of our Saviour. It was 1763 years old when Columbus discovered America.

'Poems are made by fools like
you and me,
But only God can make a tree.'

"'And he shall be like a tree.' Trees and folks resemble one another. Some are straight and tall and clean, some are crooked and others are deceptive. Man's face was intended to reveal what is on the inside, but often it conceals to very things it was intended to reveal. Trees are not that way. Traveling through the great forests of Canada we came upon a number of large white pines that had been left by the logging company while all the others had been taken. I said to my companion, why were these fine trees left standing? His reply was, 'They are no good.' But said I, 'I see nothing wrong with them.' He proceeded to show me spots of 'punk' on each and every tree that had been rejected, and informed me that punk on the outside of a pine tree was a sure indication that it was decayed at the heart. And I said, 'If trees were like people these spots would be concealed.'

"Some trees are for great strength and endurance. In the Ozark region a man took great pride in pointing out to me an oak sill he had just placed under his new house that was hewed out by his grandfather 90 years before and this was the third house under which that sill had been used and it was still straight and sound. How many generations have been held up, so to speak, by the stalwart manhood of some old sturdy godly fore-father.

"But the Psalmist is speaking about fruit-bearing trees. 'By their fruits ye shall know them.' And he says that such a man, 'walketh not in the council of the ungodly, nor standeth in the way of sinners, nor sitteth in the seat of the scoffers: But his delight is in the law of Jehovah; and on his law doth he meditate day and night.'

"Again the writer says that such a tree bringeth forth its fruit in its season. The fig tree upon which Jesus failed to find fruit, he cursed and it died. How patient is God in waiting for some of us to bear fruit.

"This tree was 'planted by the streams of water.' This means in the most favorable location. The Bible is a well of water, the Gospel a running stream; Sunday, a quiet lake and the sanctuary, a pool of Bethesda where wounded souls are cleansed. Will you choose the place where your life will bear the most fruit?"

Mrs. F. A. Bush Writes Here of Playground at Jefferson School

Mrs. F. A. Bush, formerly of Maryville, now of Sidney, Neb., writes to the Democrat-Forum. Mrs. Bush likes the school page and will be glad when it starts again.

The former Maryville woman thinks the Jefferson School could use the old cemetery in the yard as a playground for the children.

Here is her letter:

Sidney, Nebraska.
July 9, 1927.

To the Democrat Forum
Maryville, Missouri.

You are a welcome visitor to our home; we note all the news; we even read the advertisements and know we would enjoy visiting the stores, though we should fail to gladden the hearts of the clerks by going out empty-handed.

May I say, personally, that I miss the school page and I shall be glad when school begins for the reason it will again appear. It seems to me there is no better way for the public to become familiar with school affairs than through this medium and that you are doing a wonderful work in providing this page. Too, were I consulted, I would urge the teachers to use it more and thus help to secure greater interest from the parents which will culminate in intelligent co-operation.

Not long ago, while reading a nationally known and read magazine, I found this,

"Twenty thousand dead sleep none the less sweetly for the patter of childish feet above them at the Quaker Playground in Philadelphia, Fourth and Arch Streets.

"We have come to dedicate a portion of that field as a final resting place for those who here gave their lives that the nation might live. It is for us, the living to be dedicated to the unfinished work which they so nobly advanced." Lincoln's address, as he stood above the graves of Gettysburg's soldiers, would have been applicable to the spirit which inspired the opening of the iron gates to the grassy square were slept those who lost their lives in the scourge of the Yellow Plague."

It caused me to think of the Jefferson school with its small playground for the large number of children. Although I had often thought of it while there, I must have lacked the courage to say it publicly. But now, if Philadelphia can, why not Maryville use the ground adjacent to the school for the children.

If it causes a shock to any one, it is only a matter of sentiment. If the dead know not anything, they won't care; if they are somewhere conscious, surely they would be happy to know they were providing happiness for the little children of that school who need room. I can see no sacrilege in using the ground for that purpose.

There are many pleasant features about living out here but we miss a host of things—Maryville provided.

If you wish to print this, all right; if not, it's just the same with me.

We send our best wishes to Maryville friends.

Yours truly,
Mrs. F. A. Bush.

Meanwhile Burlington Junction took Barnard down a peg by the close score of 7 to 6. It was the first defeat Barnard had suffered in the Nodaway County league.

Pickering kept pace with Quitman for second place when Gumm held Graham to two scores and Pickering ran wild for thirteen.

College Mentioned in Art Magazine

Mention Made Of Senior Class' Gift Of Two Paintings To Institution.

The following article appeared in the July issue of the "American Magazine Of Art:" "The Senior Class of the Northwest Missouri State Teachers College at Maryville has purchased two paintings as a gift to the institution—one by Birger Sandzen, the other by Delle Miller. During May an exhibition of paintings by members of the Kansas City Society of Artists was held at the college."

The "American Magazine of Art" is the official publication of the American Federation of Arts. It is one of the best publications issued in the interest of art. It is a national art paper, and one of the three or four published in the interest of that subject.

The Senior Class at the college selected as its second picture for a gift to the college, a painting by Birger Sandzen called "The Hidden Valley." It is a beautiful work and is done in very bright colors, a characteristic feature of Sandzen. The first picture selected by the class was "Unconquered" by Delle Miller.

Vernon J. Barrett of Hopkins spent the week-end with friends in Maryville.

CHURCH BEST WHEN FOOLISH

DARING VALUABLE IN RELIGION, SAYS MITCHELL.

CHRIST CALLED 'FOOL'

"I Would Rather Have Name Listed With Him Than Be Among the Nonentities," Minister Asserts

"A church is at its best when the outside world is accusing it as being foolish," declared the Rev. R. A. Mitchell in his sermon of "Fools," yesterday morning at the M. E. Church South.

"A church that in the eyes of the world is quite sensible, tame and manageable has ceased to be a church," the minister declared.

"Pliny was a good man, an able man, and a man whose business it was to tell the Emperor all that went ono in his district. He writes about Christianity. He tells some of the stories that are circulating concerning the Christians. He prides himself that he is too fair-minded to believe them to be true. You can see that he believes christianity to be somewhat of a puzzle. Christians, from his viewpoint, are too idealistic. They have too high an idea of the possibilities of human nature.

"This is the same charge the Devil made against Christ in the desert temptation.

"Frequently we hear people say about us, 'he is no fool.' We become puffed up over what we think a compliment. I really believe we ought to feel insulted. It damns us to insignificance.

"I refer you to the late 'Flying Fool,' Lindbergh. Life that is worthwhile is a life that is daring. Doing the things that other people are afraid to do, or think impossible.

A Typical Temptation.

"Our Lord's temptation in the wilderness is typical of the temptations that come to every one of us.

"If thou art the Son of God, change these stones into bread.' That is what the people want. Give them what they want. They care not for a life of sacrifice, such as Calvary. They want the spectacular, the miraculous. In substance Jesus replied, 'In my view of man there are things he wants more than food.' 'O, well,' retorted the Devil, 'if you are going to look at it in that idealistic way let us go to the top of the temple.'

"'Now,' says Satan, 'These people down there are expecting a Messiah from heaven. Drop down among them and they will acclaim you as that looked for Messiah. You won't be hurt. They love a thrill.'

"When that did not work, the Devil took Him to a high mountain and showed Him all the world. 'Now young man,' said Satan, 'don't be a fool and throw your life away. Those people are not worth it. They know what they want, and what they want is not the thing you are proposing. If you will lower your standards and play up to them you can have the whole world.'

"To such cynicism and scorn of the best that life holds there is no answer save as Christ gave to Satan, 'Get thee behind me, Satan, you and I live in two different worlds.'

"When our Lord made known his intention to go a second time into Bethany, Peter, James and John, the men who now figure in our stained glass windows, remonstrated with him. Called his attention to the fact that He had been stoned and persecuted there and that it was a foolish venture. The man whom we call the Doubter and of whom we make all manner of fun had the grace to say, 'Let us go also, and let us die with Him.'

Judas Was "No Fool."

"Judas thought Him a fool. He planned the betrayal, some think, to force Christ's kingdom, thinking Christ would call on the legions of heaven to confound His enemies. The night came, the hour came, the moment came, and Judas gave the kiss of betrayal, the soldiers put their hands on Him and led Him away. Judas was amazed. Muttering at Christ's foolishness, Judas thought He was a fool.

Pilate asked Christ what His business was. Jesus said, 'I am come to bear witness to the Truth.' Pilate laughed and said, in substance, 'Take it from me young man the people are not worth the effort. It is a fine pearl that you have. But if you tell the people the truth they will become angry. They will put you to death. People are not looking for pearls of great price, they are looking for oysters to fill their stomachs. You are young. Only thirty-three. You are a fool to expect people to reach out for your ideal.'

"Our Lord gave the only answer that you can give to an insinuation like that. He answered him nothing but went out and laid down His life for His ideal.

"There are so many things in life that require this. The humblest woman in this congregation knows what I am talking about. A voice comes to you and says, "Why stay at home and work and labor and deny yourself that your sons and daughters may have an education? They won't appreciate what you do. Some day they will look at your careworn hands, your wrinkled face and bent form and be ashamed of you.' Youth is an ungrateful lot. You are a fool." What kind of an answer can that mother give? Only one, and thank God she gives it because she knows the truth about youth. She goes on to work that her children might have these advantages, but the outside world calls her a fool.

Young People Tempted.

"The young folks of today know what I am talking about. There are so many voices that appeal, calling for the lowering of ideals. 'Don't be a fool. What do you want to stick to those ideals for? People will think just as much of you. You will go just as far and have just as much. You don't want to be a Puritan. Why be a wall flower?'

"The only answer a true young man or young woman can give to insinuations such as that is the answer of Christ, 'Get thee behind me, Satan, you and I live in two different worlds.'

"If this be your interpretation of a fool, think of the long list of them, among whom we find the names, Jesus of Nazareth, Saul of Tarsus, Hugh Latimer, John Knox, Martin Luther, John Wesley, your own good father and mother. I would rather give my name on their side of life's battle, than among those nonentities whose lives fritter away into insignificance because they have neither the mental or moral stamina to stand for what they know to be the truth."

One thousand and ninety-five persons paid to see Babe Adams, former Big League pitcher with Pittsburgh, hurling for Bethany yesterday, go down to defeat, 8 to 5, before Albany. Adams struck out six men. He attributed his defeat to errors back of him.

Adams was the first Big Leaguer to hurl in the Northwest Missouri League. Jimmy Griffin, a former western League twirler, living at St. Joseph, was the winning pitcher. Turpin caught for Adams and Nelson received Griffin.

Each team made ten hits and two errors.

Stanberry continued to lead the league today by humbling Hopkins at Stanberry 6 to 2. Bosch and Dix were the Stanberry battery, while Wolf and Reeder comprised the Hopkins battery. Stanberry touched Wolf for six hits and made only one error, while Hopkins could collect but five hits off Bosch and made two errors.

Union Star went into a tie with Hopkins for third place by defeating Gentry 11 to 5. Union Star made twelve hits and two errors, while Gentry made eight hits and three errors. Although Gentry lost she continued in second place in the League. Holland and Huffman comprised the Union Star battery and Lisle and Summa did the hurling and receiving for Gentry.

Maryville moved into fourth place by defeating King City 7 to 3 and Bethany fell a notch when beaten by Albany.

Dodge to Announce New Line of Fours

Greatest Speed in Their Class to Be Claimed.—Local Dealers Summoned to Meeting.

Forthcoming announcement of a new line of four-cylinder motor cars by Dodge Brothers was indicated today when E. D. Arnold and Howard Strong, local dealers, were summoned to a dealers' conference to be held in Kansas City tomorrow.

Information received here has it that the new cars are to be the "fastest fours in America" and that they are to be priced at new low levels. It is claimed also that the new cars will be more economical to operate than any cars of the same size ever built. The local dealers have nothing definite as to price or specifications.

The body designs are said to be more radical than anything Dodge Brothers have undertaken in the four-cylinder field, with unusual beauty and excellence of appointments.

In the past the Dodge company has always emphasized the dependability of its cars, and nothing has ever been claimed as to their speed except that it has always been "ample."

Mrs. Arnold and Mrs. Strong will accompany the local dealers to Kansas City. Mr. Arnold will go on to Evansville, Ind., from where he will drive back a commercial car for delivery to a firm here.

New Telephone System.

Princeton, Mo., July 11.—A new telephone system, costing approximately $20,000 will be installed here this fall, according to an announcement by R. R. Wilcox, district manager of the Middle States Utilities Company.

The new system will have an improved switchboard, new telephones all around, with replacement of wires poles, and cables wherever necessary. It will be a common battery plant, which means telephones without cranks.

The company has recently installed new systems in Kahoka and Unionville.

New Funeral Chapel.

Trenton, Mo., July 11.—A new funeral chapel devoted exclusively to embalming and conduct of rites for the dead will be opened here Aug. 1 by Bern C. Davis of Stuart, Iowa.

Progress Means Service!
The Giant Airship Serves Better than the Flimsy Balloon!

Something of the glamour of Long Ago and Far Away attaches itself to man's early attempts to conquer the air with the flimsy balloon. It was a daring gesture, but the needs of mankind are served better by the giant airship, with its far-reaching possibilities of service.

Twenty-five years ago the J. C. Penney Company had only a small country store. Its ideals of helpfulness and service lived only in the efforts of one man, and affected at best, but a handful of customers. Today it has soared upward to a giant institution of 885 Stores, stretching from coast to coast.

Like the airship, it has grown in order that it may better serve the needs of a nation.

THIS HAS HAPPENED

LINCOLN NUNNALLY, elderly American chemist, is summoned to bet little jungle-brodered town, of PORTO VERDE, in west central Brazil, by his young friend, VILAK, who is concerned for the safety of his beautiful cousin, ELISE MARBERRY, owner of a coffee plantation and other property near Porto Verde.

Several mysterious deaths have occurred, including that of TONY BARBETTA, one of Elise's foremen, and the girl herself has received warnings to get out of the country.

Vilak believes GAYLORD PRENTISS, a reticent and forbidding man, known to be an enemy of Elise, may be involved some way in the deaths. Accordingly, he and Nunnally set out for Prentiss' house, which is guarded by barbed wire fences and a vicious dog. Elise insists on joining them. Prentiss sets the dog on them and Vilak saves his companions' lives by chloroforming it into unconsciousness.

The next day Elise's two-year-old orphaned nephew is kidnaped. Vilak finds the trail and in a few hours they come upon the child, deserted by its captors and being cared for by a gang of railroad workmen. Returning with the baby, Vilak gravely tells Elise he has bad news for her.

Vilak tells Elise she and the child must leave on the next boat. He and Nunnally return that evening to reward D'Albentara and his men with some wine. Before they come away, Vilak, through a seemingly accidental fall, manages to get hold of a ring, which he says he snatched from the finger of D'Albentara's half-breed foreman.

NOW BEGIN THE STORY

CHAPTER 17

"Incidentally I might add," Vilak said, "that the way things look now the usefulness of my esteemed relative, Mr. Riggs, the barber, is about over. Are you coming down to the shop with me?"

They reached the edge of a small clearing and looked from behind the shelted of a tree.

The old man nodded. Vilak sent the servants back with the cart. They turned into the highway. As they did so they saw an Indian staggering through the brush, obviously in the last stages in intoxication. He was constantly lifting to his mouth a tin cup which he refilled from a sort of crude canteen at his belt. As he walked he continually muttered an incomprehensible jargon. Nunnally recognized him as one of the Indians with the filed teeth who worked in the railroad gang. He zigzagged up the road in the direction of Vilak's house and Elise's fazenda. Vilak looked after him a moment. "That fellow is just fit for getting into trouble," he said. He continued thoughtfully down the road.

They rode to the shop, then returned to Vilak's modest house hidden behind the grove of mango trees. Vilak took some musty, dog-eared notebooks out of a suitcase which he had transformed into a sort of traveling desk and began to study them, smoking with quick feverish puffs, his eyes again slanted, his whole face again touched with a Chinese pallor. The old man busied himself with a great dull volume which he found lying on a table, a book describing the chemical resources of Brazil.

Two hours later they were on their way back to the fazenda. They had passed the barrier of mango trees, and were just riding into the open highway when a cry, suddenly cut short, rose from the thick jungle back of Vilak's house. Short though it was, the cry was undoubtedly that of a human being. Vilak wheeled his horse, dashed back the way he had just come, and dismounting at his door, began running along a path which led from the old stone well to the narrow courtyard at the rear.

The old man followed, panting. For a quarter of a mile they bolted along, now in forest so black that though the moon was shining clearly they could see nothing of the sky, now past a pool of dark, evil smelling water, along whose borders sat huge bullfrogs chanting their hoarse and mournful refrain. They saw a light between the tall trees ahead. Vilak halted. "Step softly as you can," he said to his companion.

They crept forward stealthily over the soil made into a veritable cushion by the leaf mould of centuries. As they went on they saw that the light was the light of a fire around which two shadows were moving. They reached the edge of a small clearing and looked from behind the shelter of a tree.

Now they could see plainly the two shadows; they were Pasquale Branza of the patched cheek and the one-armed Detto Cicerone. On the ground lay a third man, the drunken Indian they had noticed going up the road. He was trussed with ropes like a wild beast just captured and made ready for shipment to some far off zoo. His arms were tied flat behind his back, his mouth was gagged with a piece of old shirt, undoubtedly to stifle cries such as they heard a few moments before.

His skinny bare legs were also lashed together and placed over a log so that the bony feet projected high in the air. It was at this extremity of their victim's body that the two Italians were standing, Pasquale keeping up a running conversation in some uncouth Portuguese or Indian dialect, Detta holding in his one good arm a stick with a glowing ember at the end which he had drawn from the fire blazing a few feet away.

He gazed at the prostrate Indian a moment, grunted, then pressed the red ember against the victim's sole. Though the Indian was bound as in a vise, the horror-struck old man could see his lean body quiver with agony; the shirt over his mouth twitched convulsively as he vainly tried to express that agony in a cry. After leaving the ember against the other foot for perhaps five seconds, Detto withdrew it and put it back into the flame to be repeated. Then he removed the gag, and with his hand at the other's mouth ready to check any call for help, began growling a rapid series of questions at him.

The Indian's answers were evidently not satisfactory, for after several menaces with the hot coals again, he at length whistled a curse through the ugly orifice in his teeth, replaced the gag and lifted the glowing stick to the Indian's foot once more, this time directing it to the delicate and far more sensitive ankle.

The sight was too much for the old man's tense nerves. He gave an exclamation of horror. Vilak, forced to act before he was ready, leaped from the darkness. The astonished Detto dropped the burning stick and, turning, saw the tall, lean figure of the American. He whipped out a stiletto tucked in his belt and, as the other bounded on top of him, struck wildly.

Vilak had caught the shoulder which lacked an arm and gave him no hold. The stiletto struck him full in the wrist, weakening his grip for an instant. But it was for this instant that the wiry Italian had hoped. Wriggling away from his attacker, he struck at him again, but ineffectively this time, and darted for the shelter of the woods.

Vilak took quick aim and fired. But the darkness beyond the range of the fire made accurate shooting impossible. The bullet crashed to the lower hanging branches of the trees, and whether it had found its mark or not he could not tell. Pasquale, who had seen the chemist bursting excitedly through the bushes, evidently believing they were attacked in force, had fled ignominiously, without lifting a hand to aid his comrade.

"God, what cruelty!" Vilak murmured as he whipped out a knife and with his bleeding hand cut the Indian free. He took out a small first aid kit and put sime salve on the aborigine's burned sole, then looked at his own arm. The blood was coursing faster.

"You're wounded, er . . . badly," the old man panted in alarm. "It's my fault, to, er . . . my fault. If I hadn't cried out he wouldn't have seen . . . er . . . seen us. I'm a doddering . . . old fool . . . yes . . . old fool."

Vilak cooly whipped his brilliant necktie from his collar. "It wasn't your fault any more than it was my carelessness. Don't pay any attention to me. I'll make a tournique and stop it in a hurry. You look after that poor devil there. Put some more of that salve on his feet."

He knotted the necktie quickly round his arm and with a lead pencil tightened it so that it cut deeply into his flesh. The flow of blood perceptibly slackened. Then he took out a sealed tuge of iodine and, breaking it open, spilled the contents over the wound. "May not be necessary," he said. "But I don't want to take chances of infection. I haven't too great an admiration for Detto's personal habits. This poor devil is fortunate in that he does not need any disinfectants at least. The fire's perfect for that."

With his good hand he aided the old man in applying the salve to the seared places of the other's foot. The labor caused his arm to bleed again. He wrapped it tightly with a bandage. Satisfied that it would bleed no longer, he stooped once more and began lifting up handfuls of mud and putting them on the burned feet. "The best thing for burns, by far," he said, as the nervous old man who was guiltily eyeing his wound began following suit. "It'll fix him in no time. Make a regular cast, if you can. It's lucky we arrived when we did. I believe they would have actually burned his feet off."

"It's ghastly . . . er . . . nothing but ghastly. It almost makes me . . . er . . . makes me . . ."

"Faint? You're not used to the cruelty of your fellow men as I am. Here. Have one of my strong cigarets. It'll straighten you out. No joking."

The Indian who, with his whole body a-quiver, had been watching like a wounded dog, sudenly became rigid. His eyes closed, the throbbing of a vivid purplish vein showing in his copper black cheek ceased.

Nunnally paled. "Is he going to die? . . . Like poor . . . er . . . Tony . . . Tony did yesterday?"

(To Be Continued.)

Vilak lies about his wound to Elise, who is making plans for leaving Porto Verde by boat. But these plans are upset.

Chinch Bugs Are a New Menace to Corn

Lincoln, Neb., July 11.—A new menace to the corn crop of Nebraska has been discovered by the entomology department of the agricultural college in Lincoln in the form of chinch bugs. Harvest of small grain will result in the bugs moving to the corn fields, according to farm experts, who say an unusual number of the bugs have been found in Lancaster and Saunders counties.

A barrier around a corn field can be maintained for about $3 a day, according to the college of agriculture. Creosote oil or gas tar is used to combat the chinch bugs after it has been mixed with flake calsium cyanite. Full directions for putting up a barrier against the pest may be obtained from the entomology department.

Landmarks of the Air

The Standard Oil Company (Indiana) is contributing to American flying in very practical ways. One outstanding contribution is an immense program of marking air trails by guide marks painted on the roofs of its warehouses.

When the need arises, with the expansion of commercial aviation, these may be illuminated as guides for night flying.

The Air Mail has conclusively disposed of any misgivings about night flying. It has shown that not only is it practical and safe to fly at night when the right facilities are provided, but that there are atmospheric and other advantages in night flying.

It seems particularly appropriate that the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) should provide these landmarks of the air.

For years the signs of this Company have been familiar landmarks on all the highways and the byways of the ten great Middle Western States, and now this service is being extended to the air.

The Standard Oil Company (Indiana) has developed gasoline and motor oil to meet the requirements of every type of automobile and has distributed these products where they could be obtained conveniently throughout the Middle West.

Extending its service to meet the needs of transportation in the air, the technical division of this Company has developed special gasolines and lubricating oils for airplanes. It is now supplying a large part of the gasoline and oil for aviation.

The Standard Oil Company (Indiana) has pointed the way to motorists—furnishing free maps of the ten states—charting places of interest and beauty, publishing information about them, and giving their exact locations on motor highways.

To point the way to aviators, by means of airway designation on the roofs of its warehouses, is but an expansion of this service. In the air, as well as on the land, the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) will act as a friendly guide.

This Company is always found in the front rank of progress. In the early days it went ahead with the pioneers and helped to chart the uncharted prairies of the Middle West.

Today this organization is going ahead with the pioneers of the air, helping to chart the uncharted skies.

With the expansion of knowledge and scientific skill, the service of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) is being expanded.

The Standard Oil Company (Indiana) is contributing to American flying, having demonstrated its practical advantages in its own organization, because the management of this Company believes that commercial aviation is important to the welfare and prosperity of the thirty million people whom it serves.

The End of America's Long Flight

Here is the first actual photo to reach America of the conclusion of Richard E. Byrd's epochial flight from New York to France. It shows his plane, the America, high on the beach at Ver-Sur-Mer, France. French villagers hauled it ashore after the forced landing in the English channel. Surrounding it are crowds of spectators, hoising umbrellas to protect themselves from the rain.

New Ford Described by Financial Weekly

To Bear No Resemblance to Model T, Says Observer.—Gear Shift and Four-Wheel Brakes.

The new Ford car, as viewed on test runs near Dearborn, is described in the current issue of "Barron's Financial Weekly."

Observation makes it practically certain that the new product will bear absolutely no resemblance to the Old Model T," reads the Barron article.

"Although viewed while in motion," the article continued, "the radiator of the new car appeared to be distinctly of the Lincoln type and brake drums were visible on all four wheels indicating four-wheel brakes. It also was observed that gears were shifted by employment of a handle similar to that on other gear-shift cars.

"Another notable feature was the smoothness and quietness with which the car rapidly picked up speed after slowing down and shifting gears to cross a rutted side-road. Body mounted on a new car chassis was of the old type, for obvious reasons, and while it is thought the hood over the motor was purely a makeshift, it furnished a good deal of the probable appearance of the new hood."

CLOSING GRAIN REVIEW.

Chicago, July 11.—Wheat prices moved back and forth nervously in today's trading, caused largely by anxiety regarding the government report, due late today. Corn prices were up on bullish weather conditions, and oats showed practically no change in a featureless market.

Opening prices on wheat came unchanged to 5-8 cent lower, influenced by fine weather conditions in the Northwest and the uncertainty of the awaited report. They closed 1½ to 1⅝ cent lower. The cash market was unchanged.

Corn was bullish, closing ¾ to 2¼ cents higher, largely because of no rains in the belt over the week end and an anticipated bullish crop report. The figure is expected to be near 2,000,000,000 bushels and to produce this will require ideal weather and a late fall. The cash market was 1 to 1½ cents higher.

Oats showed little change, opening unchanged to ¾ cent lower. There was no change in the cash market.

Provisions were unchanged.

New York, July 11.—"Will you fight Tunney?"

"Yes! When can you get him?"

"Not before September."

"Too long to loaf."

"Will you take Dempsey then?"

"When can you get him?"

"July."

"Get him."

"How soon can you get ready?"

"Coupla days."

This short and snappy conversation according to Tex Rickard, was all the dickering that led up to the signing of Jack Sharkey, Boston heavyweight to meet Jack Dempsey in the Yankee Stadium here on July 21.

Rickard is a man of few words and what Sharkey has to say is short and straight to the point.

"We had to talk about money, of course, but when I found out that Sharkey was ready and willing to meet either Dempsey or Tunney I talked the business end to his manager and he's not hard to do business with," Rickard said.

Sharkey Demands Action.

Soon after Sharkey had made a mess of Jim Maloney, his rival Boston heavy-weight, Rickard saw three million dollars worth of fights in Sharkey, Dempsey and Tunney but he had to get Dempsey quick as Sharkey told him in his direct way that he wasn't going to be pushed around by any promoter and if he didn't get some matches quick he'd go to work for some other promoter.

Rickard does not get mad when he is charged with having pushed around other fighters but in Sharkey he found a new type of modern boxer.

"That fellow is certainly cocky and I got busy on Dempsey," he said. He did get busy and finally signed him and the two fighters are now in training.

When Dempsey came on from California to do the official signing, Rickard for the first time felt really secure and he was jubilant.

"Sharkey and Dempsey will draw a million," he told newspapermen who were gathered in his office overlooking a spot on the curb outside the private entrances to the Garden where Sharkey was standing in conversation with a couple of taxi drivers.

"Why don't you bring him up here?" Rickard was asked.

Manager for "Office Work."

"He won't come up here," Rickard said with a beaming smile. "He says it's too hot up here and he's tired listening to a lot of gas. He's the greatest fellow I ever met. Won't he draw with Dempsey?"

The press interview with Mr. Sharkey had to be made on the curb stone.

"Rickard just said," one of the reporters started, "that you'll d- w a million with Dempsey. That ought to be a big shot for you. How much are you to get?"

"I ought to tell you it's none of your business but I didn't know. I got a manager to do the office work," Sharkey said.

"And listen I'm not in much of humor to answer a lot of dumb questions. I've been hanging around here for two days waiting for Dempsey to come on here and sign the papers for the movies. He's stopping off with a sick mother-in-law but I've got a wife in the hospital. Who's he think he is?

"This thing of signing contracts before a lot of movies is the bunk anyway. Who cares whether we signed a contract as long as we fight. I signed two weeks ago and here I am hanging around waiting for the movies. I tell you one thing and it goes for Rickard too that if he don't get Dempsey over here tomorrow I'm gonna blow, I'm goin' fishing."

Rickard, with the benefit of his previous experiences, had Dempsey in his office the next day and they signed after an amusing incident that will be related later.

Like the Old John L.

This is a good picture of some of the interesting phases of the personality of a fighter who is causing old timers like Jack McAuliffe to smile and remark—"Well, at last there's another one like old John L. We don't know yet just how good he is but he acts and talks like a fighter."

Dempsey was a popular type of fighter when he was in the ring. His traits of the savage compared to that possessed by any old timer fighter but outside of the ring Dempsey was anything but a braggart and he had little association with the business.

When Gene Tunney won the championship from Dempsey last year some of the old timers wanted to take the veil.

"Looks like we'll have to go to work in another business. The racket has gone to hell," they couldn't understand and when they heard of a library of high brow books that had been stored in his trainng camp.

Just when the business did look like it had gone to the highbrows, along came Sharkey and Dempsey came back and the business may be saved.

Something of Sharkey the fighter and his early days will be told in the next chapter.

BUNTS HELP COMETS WIN

A BIG EIGHTH INNING GIVES MARYVILLE VICTORY.

JINX PITCHER BEATEN

Buhler Bests Thorburn, Though King City Holds Lead Until Late In The Game.

Two little bunts, one good for a hit, won a ball game yesterday for Maryville, after the Comets had gone to bat in the last of the eighth, trailing King City, 1 to 2.

Lefty Thorburn, a jinx to Maryville, pitching for the visiting team, was finally beaten, 7 to 3, and the victory gave Maryville a count of five games won and six lost. The winning pitcher for the Comets, was Buhler. He was credited with ten strike-outs.

Thorburn was not lenient in allowing hits, but Brennan lifted a pretty triple and Search also made three bases on a hit out among the cars parked along the first base line.

Yesterday, a perfect day for baseball, found about an $80 crowd to witness the defeat of King City.

Maryville brought in a run in the fourth and held the advantage until the sixth when King City tied the score. The Comets went behind in the eighth when the visitors scored again. But Thorburn was due for a fall, and six Comet runs crossed the plate in that glorious eighth.

A play by play account:

First Inning.

King City: L. Thompson struck out. Noland, out to Brennan unassisted. Casey out, P. Tobin to Brennan. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Maryville: P. Tobin flied to Harvey. Arthur and Schultz struck out. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Second Inning.

King City: James out P. Tobin to Brennan. Harvey flied to Buhler. Gibson singled. Colville struck out. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Maryville: Thorburn threw out Search. Lewis struck out. Brennan clouted out a three bagger, but Noland threw out Caywood. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Third Inning.

King City: Taylor ticked the ball in front of the plate and T. Tobin threw him out. Thorburn struck out. Thompson flied to Lewis. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Maryville: T. Tobin struck out. Jameson threw out Buhler. P. Tobin knocked a sizzler to Thorburn which nipped his glove and beat out the throw to first when Gibson juggled the ball. Arthur struck out. No runs, no hits, one error.

Fourth Inning.

King City: Noland flied to Schultz. Casey flied to Arthur. Jameson struck out. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Maryville: Gibson threw out Schultz. Search knocked the ball over the first baseman's head, and stretched a legitimate two bagger into a triple when the ball went between the cars parked near the flag. While Gibson threw out Lewis at first Search scored. Brennan struck out. One run, one hit, no errors.

Fifth Inning.

King City: Harvey flied to Schultz. Gibson knocked a three-bagger into right field. Colville went to first as Caywood threw out Gibson at home. Taylor flied to Brennan. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Maryville: Caywood out at first unassisted. T. Tobin repeated Caywood's act. Buhler put a hot one between Jameson's legs to make first. Thorburn threw out P. Tobin. No runs, no hits, one error.

Sixth Inning.

King City: Thorburn walked. Thompson singled. Thorburn going to second. Noland grounded to Lewis, who made a bad throw to Brennan and Thorburn scored. On a wild pitch Thompson tried to sneak home but was caught by T. Tobin, who retrieved the ball and tossed it to Buhler for the out. Casey and Jameson struck out. One run, one hit, one error.

Maryville: Gibson threw out Arthur. Schultz struck out. Thorburn tossed out Search. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Seventh Inning.

King City: Harvey struck out. Buhler threw out Gibson. Caywood threw out Colville. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Maryville: Gibson threw out Lewis. Noland threw out Brennan. Caywood flied to Colville. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Eighth Inning.

P. Tobin threw out Taylor. Thorburn flied to Schultz. Thompson got to first on P. Tobin's error, beating out the throw. Noland singled between first and second. Casey singled over third and Thompson scored. Jameson struck out. One run, two hits, one error.

Maryville: Thorburn hit T. Tobin. Buhler singled between center and right field. P. Tobin got to first on a grounder to Noland, who made a wild throw to first, filling the bases. Arthur struck out. Schultz tapped out a bunt which Thorburn had difficulty in getting and T. Tobin scored by the time the play was made. Search singled, scoring Buhler and P. Tobin. T. Lewis bunted to make first and Schultz scored. Brennan singled, scoring Search and Lewis. Caywood flied to Colville. Thorburn threw out T. Tobin. Six runs, four hits, one error.

Ninth Inning.

King City: Harvey doubled. Gibson grounded to Lewis, who fumbled the ball and Gibson made first. Colville struck out. One a roller to Caywood who threw out Taylor Harvey scored. Thorburn struck out. One run, one hit, one error.
